Know Your Customer
I do think compliance is a competitive advantage, done properly — the ability to execute on regulations, giving confidence to your customers that you'll be processing transactions that are appropriate. If you can do that better than others, especially in transactional banking, that's an advantage. Customers need reliability and certainty.

Richard Yorke, Executive VP | Head of the International Group at Wells Fargo
For many people around the world, their phone is now their primary means of handling money.
